

I fail to understand why telemarketers would want to overturn the Do Not Call list. If I have made it clear that I do not wish to be contacted by telemarketers, do they truly believe that if they overturn my wish and are then allowed to call me, that I would be receptive to whatever product they are selling? If I am searching for a product or service, I am quite capable of researching my options on my own, without having my evenings interrupted 20 times by a ringing telephone. Do not allow the Do Not Call list to be overturned or modified to the benefit of telemarketers.
